ENEMY ALIENS MUST TURN OVER CAMERAS, RADIOS AND FIREARMS TO THE POLICE

Chief Jones Makes Public Rules of Federal Government Recently Announced—Must Comply at Once—Receipt Will Be Given For All Articles

Bristol police today made public regulations they have just received concerning what is demanded of enemy aliens in regard to depositing with the local police authorities, cameras, radio transmitters, short wave radio receiving sets, and firearms.

The articles so deposited are received by the police and a receipt is issued.

Chief Jones today gave out in detail the rules governing radio and cameras which read as follows:

For the purpose of carrying out the Regulations prescribed in Paragraph 5 of the Proclamations of the President of December 7 and 8, 1941, relating to Japanese, German and Italian alien enemies, it is provided:

1. Radio transmitters.—(a) No alien shall use or operate or possess or have under his custody or control at any time or place any radio transmitter. For this purpose the words "radio transmitter" are to be construed as including any apparatus designed to be used or capable of being used for the sending or transmitting of radio signals, communications or messages of any kind or nature whatsoever.

2. Short-Wave Radio Receiving Sets.—(a) No alien enemy shall use, or operate or possess, or have under his custody or control at any time or place any short-wave radio receiving set. For this purpose the words "short-wave radio receiving set" are to be construed as including any apparatus designed to be used or capable of being used for the purpose of receiving signals, messages or communications of any nature whatsoever which signals, messages or communications are transmitted by means of radio waves of a frequency of 1.750 kilocycles or greater, or of a frequency of 540 kilocycles or less.

(b) A short-wave radio receiving set as defined in paragraph 2 (a) herof which set is also capable of receiving long-wave radio communications is deemed to be within the class of short-wave radio receiving sets prohibited unless the set is so altered or modified that short-wave radio communications or messages cannot be received by the said set, and further, unless the set is

Dr. H. D. Webb Re-Elected Head of Health Board

Bristol's Health Board reorganized last night by re-electing Dr. H. Doyle Webb as president. Serrill D. Detlefson was renamed secretary and James H. Brooks health officer and milk inspector.

The other members of the Board are James A. Callahan and Joseph B. Keating.

The Health Officer reported seven cases of scarlet fever now under quarantine. Two nuisances were reported, one was ordered abated and the Board decided that in the other it did not have jurisdiction.

The monthly inspection of dairies was made and sedimentation tests of milk were made and these proved to be satisfactory.

Business Men Set Date For Banquet

All incumbent officers of the Mill Street Business Men's Association were unanimously re-elected to serve during the year of 1942 when members met in regular monthly session at the Keystone Hotel here last evening. They include: Edgar Spencer, president; Abe Popkin, vice-president; Robert C. Weik, treasurer; and J. H. Elbersson, secretary.

The date set for the annual banquet was set for Thursday evening, February 5th. Continuing the practice begun last year the anniversary banquet will again feature a ladies' night program.

Committee reports and routine business consumed most of the meeting time last evening. Plans for the year were also discussed and outlined.

An intensive effort will be made within the next few weeks to increase the membership of the association. Every business establishment in the Mill street business district will be invited to join the organization.

Warn Residents To Guard Against Counterfeit Bills

Warning is issued locally of counterfeit $10 bills, which are being circulated in this area.

One such bill was presented by a customer at the Farmers National Bank yesterday, bank officials state.

Individuals are warned to scrutinize carefully all $10 bills offered them. The one found here yesterday was a good reproduction, it is said, it having the picture of Hamilton, and a green seal, as authentic $10 bills have.

"Backwards" Party is Much Enjoyed by Junior Group

A "backwards" party, arranged by members of the Junior Travel Club last evening, proved to be a thoroughly enjoyable affair.

The entire program was in reverse, with refreshments being served first, then entertainment following, then a business meeting being held.

Mrs. Clement McCarron presided, with 27 members present.

Members discussed participation in Red Cross work; and a defense committee was also named to co-operate in that phase of activity.

The entertainment committee in charge last evening included: Mrs. Mary Jo Fletcher, Mrs. John Black, Miss Phyllis Kallenback, Mrs. Harry Hanford.

NEW COUNCILMEN ARE INDUCED IN 2 TOWNS

LATEST WAR BULLETINS

Urges Russia To Keep Pact With Japan

Tokyo.—By Official Japanese Wireless—A sharp new warning to Soviet Russia to adhere strictly to her neutrality pact with Japan was voiced today by the influential newspaper Hodo Shinbun.

In particular, the newspaper said, Russia must ignore "all allures from the Anglo-American side."

"Leading American naval authorities desire Kamchatka, Vladivostok and other places in Soviet Siberia as bases for U. S. forces," the newspaper declared.

Siege of Sevastopol Lifted

Moscow.—With the siege of Sevastopol lifted and Soviet armies advancing on all fronts, the Moscow radio today predicted the early start of a full-scale offensive.

The Russian people were urged to redouble their efforts to provide the armies with everything needed to gain a complete victory.

"The enemy continues to retreat on many sectors of the front," the radio said, "losing a great number of killed and wounded, and abandoning tanks, trucks, guns and other equipment."

"The Soviet armies will do their duty and smash the invaders completely. We must increase our efforts to provide the armies with everything needed to gain that victory."

The siege of Sevastopol, giant Soviet naval base on the Black Sea coast of the Crimea, was broken as harassed Nazi forces hurriedly withdrew to new positions in an effort to avoid encirclement by Soviet troops on three sides.

Strange Suspension of Hostilities

Washington.—A strange suspension of hostilities, which the War Department believes may prelude a major assault against all defense strongholds, veiled the entire Philippine front today.

The impending attack was interpreted by Washington military observers as a manifestation of anxiety in the Japanese High Command.

The only exchange between opposing forces according to the War Department's morning communique, occurred northwest of Manila. Otherwise all was ominously quiet.

Japan, however, continued to move soldiers toward the arena of conflict, "apparently in preparation for a renewed attack in force," according to the War Department.

The text of the communique outlining the situation as of 9:30 a. m., e. s. t., follows:

"Philippine theater—Combat operations have dwindled to desultory skirmishes in various sections of the front. The enemy continues to move troops into the forward areas, apparently in preparation for a renewed attack in force."

"Hostile air activity yesterday was limited to reconnaissance flights. There is nothing to report from other areas."

AIR RAID WARDENS INFORMED OF DUTY; EXCHANGE IDEAS

First Ward Group Describes The Work Which It Has Done

SHOWS FINE SET-UP

Wardens Today Are Distributing Posters To All Residents

Bristol's Air-Raid Wardens met in the Municipal Building, last night, and held a general discussion about what the other fellow is doing in his particular sector. There was a free exchange of ideas and plans, all tending to work for the improvement and increased efficiency of the group. A blackout is scheduled for Bristol on January 18th.

The meeting was called by Linford J. Jones, chief of police, who is area chief of Bristol borough for the air wardens. He is being assisted by John Healey.

The first speaker was Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., who is in charge of the air wardens for Bristol township. Mr. Schmidt explained in detail the general set-up, methods by which this area will be advised of an air raid and of the plans which are now being perfected for warning the populace of an impending air raid. The signal will be a two-minute blast of the fire siren, and this will be augmented by the blowing of numerous factory whistles.

The all-clear signal is a one-continuous blowing of whistles for a full minute.

After addressing the gathering Mr. Schmidt answered many, many questions and imparted much information for the benefit of the wardens.

William H. H. Fine, zone chief of the First Ward, stated that he had selected two wardens, Harold F. Hunter and the Rev. W. E. Preston Haas, pastor of the First Methodist Church. Mr. Hunter and the Rev. Haas invited to describe their plan requested Mr. Healey to outline the first ward plan.

John Healey was then invited to the platform and outlined in detail the

EDGELY MAN PAINFULLY BURNED AS HE ATTEMPTS TO SAVE AUTO; THREE-CAR GARAGE DESTROYED, 3 CARS DAMAGED

J. Wesley Springer Treated at Hospital Here — Portion of Blazing Structure Falls on Head and Shoulders As He Rushes Barefoot and in Underwear to Save Machines—Blaze Discovered in Paterson Co. Village at 4.45 This Morning—Awakened by Calls of Neighbor.

EDGELY, Jan. 9.—Rushing from his home in near-zero temperature, barefoot and clad in scanty underwear, when informed that the garage in which his car was housed was afire, J. Wesley Springer was painfully burned early this morning.

Mr. Springer was awakened by the calls of William Carnes, a neighbor, and ran to the garage, 50 feet from the house, in an attempt to get his car and those of two others, William Henderson and George Sagner, to places of safety.

Upon entering the three-car frame structure, located on Paterson Lane, in the Paterson Parchment Paper Company village, and owned by the company, Mr. Springer was painfully burned when a portion of the roof, or some other burning section fell upon his head and shoulders. Not halting even at this, he stepped into his car and backed the burning sedan from the building. He then attempted to reach the other cars, but to no avail.

The building is practically a total loss; Springer's car and that of Henderson are badly damaged; and the sedan owned by Sagner is said to be almost a total wreck.

The garage is located about 50 feet from the Springer home.

Bristol Consolidated Fire Company and the Headley Manor Fire Company were summoned, and water which is pumped from the standpipe at the Paterson plant to the village, was used in an endeavor to check the flames which quickly licked the boards of the building, and the cars inside.

The blaze was discovered at about 4.45. Who first made the discovery could not be definitely ascertained. A dog owned by Harry V. Jenks, Springer's father-in-law, awakened his owner by barking, the animal evidently hearing the crackling of the flames. At that time some individuals were already on the scene, however, but the fire had already gained great headway.

Mr. Springer suffered burns on his back, arms and top of his head. He was treated at the Wagner private hospital, Bristol, and then returned to his home.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

It Works Like A Watch

Washington, Jan. 8. HERE, where there is so much duplication, disorder and waste in the effort to put the nation in fighting shape, it is invigorating to find one war agency which functions effectively, efficiently, without friction, and almost without complaint.

AS they prepare to register next month, some 5,000,000 men from 20 to 44, and eventually to extend this so as to bring the total to 43,000,000 from 18 to 64, inclusive, there is no real difference of opinion concerning the excellence of the job being done by the officials who administer the extremely vital Selective Service Act. It is extraordinary that in so vast an undertaking, affecting so huge a part of the population, there should be so little apprehension and such general satisfaction.

—O—
ALREADY a million men have been drafted into the army as a result of the first registration. As a result of the amended act, it is likely from five to six million more will be drafted. In the first registration, exemptions and deferments were made upon a very liberal basis. In the coming registration and reclassification the policy as to dependents will be much stricter. The need for men means that many who were put in the deferred class will be taken out of that class. As the need grows, the deferment policies will tighten and the exemptions become fewer.

—O—

EVERY man subject to the draft knows this. And yet, both resistance and resentment are negligible. A recent poll showed that more than ninety-seven per cent. of the people are satisfied with the manner in which the act is being administered. This largely is due to public conviction that the whole thing is being

WAR WITHOUT LIMIT

Production and personnel without limit will be provided by the United States to overwhelm the Axis in the shortest possible time. This is the gist of President Roosevelt's "state of the Union" address to Congress and of his war budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The President asks Congress to appropriate another $56,000,000,000 to prosecute the war that has been forced upon the nation by Hitler and the Japanese. Anyone who looks at the statistics of what this outpouring of wealth will provide in the form of armament for the armed forces must be more firmly convinced than ever that the victory can not long be denied to the Allies when this material is put into action against the Axis.

In 1942 the United States will produce 45,000 tanks, 60,000 planes and 20,000 anti-aircraft guns. The combined output of the outland nations cannot match these totals. For 1942, plans call for production of 75,000 tanks, 125,000 airplanes and 35,000 anti-aircraft guns.

Before the rain of steel and death these machines will pour into the Axis armies and the Axis nations, no half-fed, unpaid cannon fodder can survive. If Hitler or the Japanese war lords had the slightest doubt that American production would obliterate them and their crazy schemes, let them ponder these figures and compare them to the puny output of ersatz war material, fashioned out of stolen odds and ends of raw material, of which their slave-manner factories are capable.

ECONOMIC SLEUTHS

It is only necessary to consider the airplane to realize that twentieth-century warfare has given man many new occupations. Many more are coming into being. The most recent is a result of the Russian "scorched earth" policy which is credited with a major part in the defeat of the Nazis on that front, the policy of leaving behind as little as possible of anything that the enemy might use.

The Russians, in abandoning industrial plants to advancing Nazi armies, shipped eastward toward the Urals whatever valuable pieces of machinery they could remove. The Nazis on occasion overtook these shipments and strove to replace them in their proper setting, tried to get them back into the factories from which they came. The Russians, anticipating this, removed whatever marks of identification the machinery bore.

Thus the industrial detective, the economic sleuth, came upon the world scene. It was the function of the personnel of the economic command, attached to every German fighting corps, to work out these problems. The task is reported to have been made all but impossible because of the absence of identifying marks.

It may be that the United States Army some day will find the "scorched earth" policy used against it, and when that occurs there will be need for industrial detectives, machinery sleuths or whatever they are called. The number of engineers in America guarantees an adequate supply.

May they emulate the Canadian Mounted Police and "always get their plant."

The government is determined that it shall never be said that for want of an automobile tire for the Army the war was lost.

The Great Game of Politics

competently and impartially operated. The basic idea back of those in charge of the Selective Service Board is to get the men needed for the armed forces with a minimum of dislocation to the agricultural, industrial, social and commercial life of the nation. That was why when only a million men were needed the most liberal interpretation of the deferment provisions was made. And that is why, when millions more are needed, the interpretation will be much more strict.

OF course, the real reason for the smooth functioning of the Selective Service Act and the public confidence in its fairness is that it is one agency in which the experience of the past has been fully utilized instead of being disregarded. Not only is the present system based on that evolved in the last war but it has been extended and improved. In 1926 the selective service division was set up by the Secretaries of War and Navy. For years the most intelligent and painstaking research was done to perfect the best possible plan.

WHEN, in 1940, the Selective Service Act was passed, creating an autonomous board responsible only to the President, it found the Administration fully prepared. In this case no one could charge a lack of Administration foresight. In this case the Administration was ready with the law, with the organization and with the men. In this case the drafting is being done ever better than it was in 1917, though a very good job was done then. But the unavoidable mistakes made by those who were then the pioneers will not be repeated this time. Every sound feature of the 1917 operation has been retained; only the unessential or unsound have been discarded.

THE result is something to be proud of. In Gen. Lewis B. Hershey the President picked exactly the right man to head the board. The administrative personnel under him are officers who have been trained in selective-service details for years. There are no bungling amateurs in the organization. The machine is complete, compact, beautifully constructed. It runs like a watch and is as carefully observed. There have been almost no cases of corruption among the many thousands of local boards and extremely few miscarriages of justice. The wisdom of the selective-service administration is attested by the extent to which it goes to guard against both these things. In no other way could it better justify the public confidence so essential to its success and without which our whole war effort would be weakened.

THERE are two things about the procedure which especially contribute to popular satisfaction with it. One is the ease with which an appeal can be taken from the local draft board. In every district of 50,000 registrants there is a conveniently located, easily accessible appeal board. Any man who feels that he has not been given a fair hearing, full consideration or just treatment by his local board can appeal without trouble, expense or waste of time. The appeal is as quickly decided as it is easily taken. The other thing is the fact that there is nothing secret about the selective service. The records of the local boards are open. Full publicity is courted. The facts are available not only to newspaper reporters but to anyone else, even if he has no better excuse than sheer curiosity.

IN other words, the board goes the limit to make it impossible for any man to have a just grievance. The machinery is so geared that no one can be "railroaded" or denied a chance for a full hearing; or treated differently from others in his classification and circumstances. The combination of easy appeal and full publicity is the best guarantee against partiality, politics and injustice. This elevated conception of the job and the spirit in which it is being done is a tribute to the breadth and understanding of those in charge. It is a great piece of national luck to have it in such hands.

"THURSDAY'S CHILD" by VERA BROWN

FROM THE OLD RHYME: "THURSDAY'S CHILD HAS FAR TO GO"

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

When they were alone, Kirk and Sonny sat and looked out at the river far below.

"This is the happiest New Year's Eve I ever spent, Sonny."

The girl turned in surprise. "You're not serious?"

"Truly!"

"You'll never know what tonight has meant to me, Kirk."

"I think I do."

A sudden constraint fell between them. Kirk rose to go.

"Good night," she said, raising her lovely face for his kiss.

Just how it happened afterward, neither of them ever knew, but suddenly she was in his arms. He buried his face in her gorgeous red hair, and he knew then that for weeks this was the only thing in the world he wanted.

"Darling, darling," Kirk murmured and found her lips in a long kiss.

"I love you, Sonny." He spoke almost in a whisper. The girl clung desperately as though only here did she feel safe. She stayed in his arms a long while, oblivious to time. Then suddenly, as though appalled at what had happened, she struggled free, covered her face with her hands.

"Look at me!" he demanded. "Do you love me?"

She raised her head: "I think I loved you from the moment I first saw you," she admitted. "But it's no use. We're insane."

He drew her back into his arms, touched her hair gently.

"I've known I loved you ever since the day I got back from my vacation." He added ruefully: "I didn't think of much else when I was away. You gave me some bad moments with Corey. And with Alex. I pretended to myself it was because I felt responsible for you, but it wasn't. His voice was suddenly tired. "I can't fight against it any more, Sonny."

She began to cry silently, there in his arms. "What are we going to do, Kirk?" All the tragedy of the last year was in those words.

"If you mean Janice, we're through. She told me tonight." He was struck with a sudden thought: "Odd but she was always jealous of you. Women are always jealous of you. Women are always jealous of you. Women are always jealous of you."

She began to cry silently, there in his arms. "What are we going to do, Kirk?" All the tragedy of the last year was in those words.

me enough to wait? Time, he felt, might help him.

"For always?"

"We'll manage. You go back to school and work hard. I will keep my nose to the grindstone here. I can see you often. It won't be so bad. Next summer, maybe you can go west."

"Away from you, Kirk?" she cried out in protest.

"I'll fly out and we can have a couple of weeks together. It would be wonderful. We'll take Mrs. Metzger along."

"Oh, Kirk. You're just trying to fool yourself. Your mother will never relent. I took one son from her. I can't take another. I've thought a lot about things since I've been away. It wasn't until I realized how much I loved you that I could understand what she must be suffering. You're all she's got now because of me."

Kirk paced the floor. Sonny was right, still he groped for a solution to their difficulty.

"Good sense can settle any problem," he said half-heartedly. "We've got to fight. Carol will help us. She's fond of you."

"Carol may be fond of me, but she loved Tom, too."

Kirk turned away.

"Come here, Kirk. I've never told you about Tom and me. I want you to know everything. Please."

Sonny told Kirk every detail of the elopement. "I didn't love Tom. He didn't love me. We were just crazy kids and I was desperate. My foster-father was unkind to me and Tom was a way out of my troubles. However, I liked him a lot and tried to be a good wife. Then that awful tragedy overtook us. That's about all Kirk, except that I'm not going to bring any more trouble to you even if it means not ever seeing you again."

Helplessly they clung together.

"I'm not going to give you up. I've a right to my happiness," said Kirk brokenly. "There isn't any use running away from this. And I'm not going to. We're going to be happy. I tell you. We'll get married in two or three years, take a long trip to Honolulu, the Orient and Europe. We'll see all the grand places in the world, Sonny. Then we'll come back and settle down."

It could only be, Sonny thought. But in her heart she knew it was hopeless.

"Will you try, Sonny, to help?"

"I'll try, Kirk," she promised. "You better go now!"

He stood up, reluctant to leave.

"Our first New Year's Eve. Never again will I ever face a lonely New Year if I love me. That will be enough, even if we aren't together."

At the door, he took her in a final embrace. Then he was gone.

Sonny slipped down on the floor and wept. It was all so hopeless.

In the cold dawn which followed, Sonny found sleep impossible. She went out into the kitchen and washed the dishes. Then she rearranged the living-room, taking down the heavy drapes and packing away a lot of the bric-a-brac and excess decorations which gave it that cluttered appearance.

"There that's better," she said as she gazed at her handiwork. Then, exhausted, she fell into her bed.

Sonny woke hours later to find Carol standing at the foot of her bed.

"I had no idea you'd stay the night." She slumped down on the chaise longue, looking desperately tired. "What hit the living room?"

"I did," Sonny said in a sleepy voice.

"You didn't do so badly, considering. If you'll promise to stay awake and talk to me, I'll make us some coffee."

Carol trailed her velvet dress out into the kitchen and Sonny could hear her fussing about. In a little while she came back with some strong coffee.

"Nice?" she smiled. "You look tired. What a queer time to start your interior decorating."

"Carol," Sonny put out her hand. "You're not using the apartment just to meet Al?"

Carol laughed.

"You're a sweet child! Of course not. Imagine you worrying about me! I didn't want to drive home, thought I'd wait until this afternoon."

She put out her cigarette and Sonny was too sleepy to notice how her hand trembled. Then she got up, came over and sat down on the bed beside her sister-in-law.

"You know, I do feel sort of responsible because, after all, I did introduce you to Al!" Sonny said.

"Forget it! If it will make you feel any better, let I promise you I won't marry him."

Just then the telephone rang. Carol reached for it. "It's probably Al. Hello—Kirk!"

A pause.

"Yes, she's here, having coffee with me. Oh, she looks all right. A little pale. Late hours, I suspect!"

Then she handed the phone to Sonny: "He wants to talk to you."

Under Carol's eyes, Sonny had to carry on her conversation. It was a "yes" and "no" affair. It was hard to keep her composure under Carol's inquisitive eyes when Kirk told her he loved her.

"He's coming to drive me back to Marlboro," Sonny said when she hung up.

Carol dropped her eyes to hide her satisfaction.

"I want to do some shopping," Sonny continued. "So, I'll stay here until Monday when school starts again."

"Oh! That's nice. We must see you have fun."

Afterward Sonny wondered if things would have been different if she and Carol had been frank with each other. But by then it was too late. Genuinely fond of each other, they carried on their little comedy of deception, each proud of her own cleverness.

"Then you'll be back later?" Carol asked, hiding the disappointment in her voice.

"Yes, I'll be back by six to dress. Kirk is going to take me out."

"I'd better be getting on. Mother will be expecting me."

Before Carol left, Al called, but Sonny was in the shower and did not hear his conversation.

FROM THE OLD RHYME: "THURSDAY'S CHILD HAS FAR TO GO"

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

After Carol had gone, Sonny was strangely restless. She wondered if Carol thought Kirk's sudden attentions odd. And always she came back to Al. She must talk to him. But all her worries disappeared when Kirk came in the door bringing her orchids.

He drew her into his arms. "I thought you might vanish before I got here!" Then he looked around at the room. "You darling! It's all right or, rather, much better. Anyway, I love it!"

The two of them lived in a fool's paradise for the next few days. Kirk cancelled all other social engagements. When Janice telephoned, he refused to meet her to discuss their situation. He considered it ended. She had issued an ultimatum and he had accepted it.

His father spoke to him once about Janice: "Her mother came to see me today, Kirk. She was pretty difficult."

"I suppose. If you want a reason for all this, she's it."

"Janice is a fine girl, Kirk. But I pointed out to her mother that after all it was between you two children."

He added with a twinkle in his eye: "She seemed convinced there is another woman. Is there?"

"No, father. No other woman came between Janice and me." And Kirk felt he spoke truthfully.

"There's only one thing. I don't want her bothering your mother. I won't have that."

Kirk's voice was menacing: "If she does—"

"We just can't permit that. But tell your mother today."

Kirk promised he would and he did.

Their last night together, Kirk gave Sonny a ring. It was a beautiful square-cut emerald.

"I had it made for your little finger. The day we can tell people we'll have it fitted properly."

"It's beautiful!" Sonny exclaimed with emotion.

The parting was hard, but Sonny made Kirk agree they would not see each other for a month.

LIVING WITHIN THE INCOME SHOULD BE A GOAL FOR FAMILIES

By Miss Edna Stephany
(Home Economics Representative)

Today it is more important than ever for every American family to take stock of its resources, plan its spending to meet necessities, and perhaps stretch its income by doing more at home.

Every family in Bucks County wants to make the most of its income. Why not as a family unit this year decide to plan the spending of that income.

About how much will you need in 1942 to pay for food? For clothing? For operating expenses in the home? What will you need for transportation, for education and health? What can you afford for recreation and gifts? The smaller the income, the more ingenuity and thought the planning will require. But what a satisfaction when the plan is applied. Also there is better co-operation when all members of the family know the goal and the available resources.

Families successfully managing their incomes report that they "pay as they go" with an attempt to keep up with the Jones family. Instead they plan for a living as happy and comfortable as their income allows. They include education for the children and security for old age. To accomplish this may require much ingenuity, but they pride themselves when they overcome most of their difficulties.

These families have kept an accurate record of income and outgo of money. They have produced a large share of their food supply; they have arranged for inexpensive recreation at home. They generally have found it necessary to make their own home repairs instead of hiring someone and to plan ahead for major farm and home improvements.

Families with limited incomes will find it profitable to plan their income and spending for a year in advance. This is necessary if they are sincerely anxious to have the highest standard of living their incomes will afford.

DEER TOO "DEAR"

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — (INS) — Last summer, when three sets of twin deer were born, Chattanooga Zoo officials felt mighty proud. Now, all three sets have become too "dear" to keep.

"It's a simple matter of supply and demand," said Parks and Playground Commissioner Robert M. Cooke. "The number of animals demand more food than we've got money available in our budget." So the six "dear" deer have been given to the State Conservation Department, and will help augment the supply in the Tennessee State Parks.

Enemy Aliens Must Turn Over Cameras, Radios and Firearms to the Police

so altered or modified that it is impossible without the addition of more parts and the substantial rebuilding of the set to modify the set so that it will be capable of receiving short-wave radio communications.

(c) No alien enemy who is found in possession of any short-wave radio receiving set will be excused in any manner on the ground that he did not know that the set was a short-wave radio receiving set or that the set could be readily converted into a short-wave radio receiving set. It shall be the duty of any alien enemy to ascertain whether or not any radio in his possession is prohibited; and any alien enemy having in his possession any radio receiving set whatsoever shall be held responsible for knowing whether or not such set is a short-wave radio receiving set.

3. Cameras.—(a) No enemy alien shall use or operate or possess or have under his custody or control at any time or place any camera except as hereinafter provided.

(b) Fixed cameras which are not readily transportable to the local police station or stated place of deposit hereinafter described and which are customarily regarded as studio cameras and not as hand cameras may temporarily be retained, providing that any alien enemy having such camera in his possession, custody or control shall make a written report thereof to the local police authorities hereinafter referred to.

(c) The several United States Attorneys are hereby authorized in accordance with instructions which will be furnished to them to issue letters permitting specified alien enemies to possess photographic equipment in specified ways. Such permission will be granted, however, only where a compelling reason for such issuance is shown and after suitable investigation has been completed. While an application for such permission is pending an alien enemy may not retain any camera (except as heretofore provided). United States Attorneys will, however, give preferential attention to applications for permission to operate studio cameras, and will issue such permission unless they deem it to be dangerous to the public safety whenever they are satisfied that such camera or cameras cannot be readily transported.

4. Deposit of Prohibited Articles.—An alien enemy who shall have in his possession any radio transmitting set, short-wave radio receiving set or camera (except as provided in par. 3 (b)) shall, on or before 11 p. m., December 29, 1941, in the States of California, Oregon, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, Utah, and Washington, and on or before a date to be announced by the Attorney General, in the remaining States of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, deliver such set or camera to the local police authorities of the community in which he resides at the place designated by such local police authorities. In each case the police authorities shall issue a receipt to the alien suitably describing the set or camera. Local police authorities will return and release any camera upon production of the letter of the United States Attorney permitting the alien enemy to possess such camera.

5. Penalties.—(a) Any prohibited articles possessed in violation of paragraph 5 of the Regulations of the said Proclamations of the President or the provisions herein set forth are subject to seizure and forfeiture.

(b) In any case of a willful failure to comply with the Proclamations of the President or the provisions herein set forth, the United States Attorney may apply to the Attorney General for a warrant for the apprehension of the alien enemy.

FRANCIS BIDDLE,

Attorney General.

Temperance and Missions Program Is Well Presented

YARDLEY, Jan. 9.—A temperance and missions program was given at the meeting of Yardley W. C. T. U. held at the home of Mrs. Linford Hampton on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30. Mrs. Ella P. Wright, director of temperance and missions, introduced Miss Anna Wright, who presented the program. A resume of the temperance mission work was given. Miss Wright showed how in spite of war conditions in the different countries, this temperance mission work is still being carried on.

The president, Mrs. Lucy A. Harper, presided, and Mrs. John B. Force conducted the devotionals. Mrs. Walter H. Thompson read an article, "No Democracy Without Religion" and "What Has the Church to Offer?" Miss Elizabeth S. Weeks gave a talk on "The Bill of Rights."

The treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Allen, reported that almost everyone had paid their dues for the year. A donation of $2 was given to the Frances Willard Fund, and $2 to the Lillian Stevens Fund.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles G. Cadwallader.

ATLANTA, Ga.—(INS)—Just because he's crippled, Cliff M. Ferguson, 54-year-old Atlantan isn't letting that stop him from aiding his country in time of war. "I can't fight, but I want to help," Ferguson declared, so he called in a friend and gave him money to buy two $25 defense bonds. He had saved the funds from a $25 monthly insurance payment received since he was injured in a railroad accident.

BOSTON.—(INS)—The thought of arriving late at school abashed two young brothers so much they hid shamefacedly for 36 hours in the cellar of their home. Edward Eaton, 11, and John, 12, explained they would have been late for the first time if they had continued on their way to school.

FIFTH WARD LOSES
FIRST HALF CROWN
IN BRISTOL LEAGUE

Team Handed Defeat By
Rohm & Haas On Mutual
Aid Court

FINAL SCORE IS 39 TO 36

Victory Would Have Meant
Honors of First Half

After winning six straight games, the Fifth Ward Sporting Club was handed a bitter setback last night when downed by the Rohm & Haas team, 39-36, on the Mutual Aid floor.

A victory for the Warders would have given them the first half championship of the Bristol Basketball League but the loss put the Fifth Ward team in a deadlock with Profy's for first place and as the result the two teams will battle it out for the crown Monday night.

The close playing gave the Rohm and Haas team a 27-24 lead at the close of the third period, erasing a five-point deficit at the end of the first half.

Leading the attack of the Maple Beach team were "Bill" Gallagher and Jimmy Rue, both of whom counted twelve points. Joe Fica was outstanding for the Fifth Ward aggregation and it was his playing which kept the Maroons in the game until the final whistle.

SECOND HALF ATTACK
WINS FOR PLEXIGLAS

A fast second half attack gave the Plexiglas team a 34-29 victory over the Labor Crew in a Rohm and Haas League game played on the club-house floor last night. The Plexiglas team followed this with a 44-35 triumph over the Laboratory 2, 5, 6, team.

Martin with 20 points led the "gummers" to victory while McGee and English were outstanding in the Labor-Plexiglas game.

MANHATTAN SOAP
AN EASY VICTOR

"Erase the third quarter and we would have beaten them."

That was the remark of Owner Paul Voltz after his team was defeated by Manhattan Soap A. A. last night on the Mutual Aid floor. Final count was: Manhattan, 51; Voltz-Texaco, 39.

The statement was true as the soap-workers scored 16 points in that tragic third session while holding the gas-cue to a lone field goal. In the final ten minutes, the Voltz team outplayed the Manhattans.

The victory gave the Manhattan team the right to meet Franklin A. C. in the preliminary game Monday night.

FALLS HIGH SCHOOL
TEAM TO SEEK VICTORY TONIGHT

Will Play Bristol High In Conference Tilt At Parker School, Trenton

JAY - VEE'S SCHEDULED

Doheny's Team Has Record of Five Straight Victories

"Jimmy" Doheny's fast-going Falls Township high school basketball team will seek its first Lower Bucks County Conference victory tonight when it meets Bristol High on the Parker School floor, Union street, Trenton. In the preliminary game, the Jay-Vee teams of the two schools will clash.

Doheny's Falls' team has a record of five straight victories, three of these being scored in the Delaware Valley Conference, which the Orange and Black lead. "This is the first Lower Bucks game for the Fallsington boys, although in a game before the Christmas season, the Dohenymen ran up a total of 71 points against Bensalem. Bensalem, however, is not in the same class as Falls.

The Falls boys suffered two early defeats at the hands of Trenton High and the New Jersey School for Deaf but since then they have hit a winning pace and are rolling up some high scores. The mainstays of the team are: Arch, Driscoll, Monti, Napoli, Mansmann, and Silvi.

Bristol has played two games. It beat the Alumni team and then on Tuesday night dropped a 27-20 verdict to West Conshohocken. Conshohocken finished high in the P. L. A. A. tournament last season.

Led by "Chick" DeAngelo and Johnny Melidjo, the Bristol team is out to avenge the defeats labelled on them by Fallsington last season.

"Your Warden is your friend. Welcome him—get to know him. He has some advice for you on which your life may depend!"

"Do these things when the Air Raid Warden calls:

"1. Have him meet every member of your family.

"2. Tell him where you are to be found when you are away from home—where you work.

"3. Tell him about any member of the household who is ill or handicapped. Tell him about all small children.

"4. Show him the room you intend to use as a refuge room, as his suggestions for fitting it up. Follow them—he knows!

"5. Ask him what are the official air raid warning signals, the official 'all clear,' for your community.

"6. Show him your attic or garret, ask his suggestions for protecting it against incendiary bombs. Also garages or outbuildings.

"7. Show him where gas and electric shut-off switches are, in all buildings.

"8. Ask him to point out good shelter in the neighborhood, should you be caught outdoors in a raid sometime.

"9. Answer his questions—trust him; he is a sworn public official, and must know in order to protect you.

"10. Carry out his suggestions for storing emergency water, sand, etc., cheerfully and promptly.

"11. Ask him how you can help, where you should go to volunteer your services. Calm, strong, able people are needed for volunteer service. Do your part.

"Remember what your Air Raid Warden's name is, what he looks like, where he is to be found. He is your best friend in an emergency. He can protect you and help you to do your share in defeating the Japs, Nazis, or any other enemy!"

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(INS)—A warning note to hopeful brides has been sounded by Dr. Clifford R. Adams, instructor of education and psychology at Pennsylvania State College. Aserting that women who attend college lessen their chances for marriage, Dr. Adams said that "women who can toast bread without burning it and sew buttons on correctly have better chance for marriage than those who can't."

BENSALEM COACH
CONFIDENT TEAM WILL BE STRONG

Helen Smith Called Upon To Mould Entire New Defense

OPENS SEASON JAN. 16TH

Lost A Number of Good Players At End of Last Season

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Jan. 9.—Faced with the problem of molding an entire new defense, Coach Helen Smith, of the Bensalem high school, feels confident that her 1942 team will again be among the leading teams of lower Bucks county. Last season, Coach Smith's squad won its division of the Lower Bucks Conference although no play-off was held.

The Owlettes lost Edith Stuletrager, Dorothy Doyle, Pauline Freas, Mildred Smith, Jean Mudie and Mary Carter by the last graduation and all these were guards who had a formidable defense all season.

To replace her loss, Coach Smith is depending on Edna Meisenger, Mildred Vanzant, Doris Gonzales, Helen Dwyer, Doris Cribblear, and Margaret Cook. These will be the girls who will be at the guard posts throughout the season.

For the forward positions, it seems certain that the following will be in the varsity position: Doris Ely, Eleanor Hughes, Hazel Lamon, and Lois Lange.

Coach Smith will also carry many other players on her regular squad including: Elizabeth Anderson, Josephine Call, Florence Carter, Gail King, Bertha Villus, Vella Luzzi, Helen Perkins, Genevieve Peterson, Betty Postter, Ellen Mae Puma, Regina Silva, Jean Stuletrager, Marjorie Trueheart, Dorothy Turner, and Katherine Vandegrift.

The season will officially open tonight, with the Owlettes meeting Buckingham on the latter's floor. This week the team played a game with the Alumni and finished on top, 47-22.

The team is managed by Mary Jane Given, Ethel Yehle, and Alice Mack, with the assistant manager being Alice Mack.

The remainder of the schedule is as follows:

January 12—Boothwyn, home
January 16—Bristol, away
January 23—Southampton, home
January 30—Buckingham, home
February 6—Bristol, home
February 10—Boothwyn, away
February 13—Southampton, away
February 17—Lower Moreland, away
The Lower Bucks County League play-offs are scheduled to begin on February 27th.

Nazi Reverses Big Surprise of Past Year

ter-offensive and so gigantic its scope that the extent of the Nazi rout was not completely evident in its early stages. The German High Command sought to hide the facts as long as possible by declaring their troops were falling back to "permanent winter lines."

In the late days of December, however, even the Germans admitted they had sustained their first defeat in a land action in more than two and one-half years of total war.

As the great Soviet counter-offensive neared its peak, some neutral observers expressed the opinion that the German invasion of Russia might eventually be turned into a Russian invasion of Germany.

Nazi peace "feelers" were extended to Moscow, and scornfully rejected. Pravda, official newspaper of the Communist party, declared that Russia would make peace with Germany only in conjunction with Britain and the United States.

"And when the time comes," Pravda said, "Hitler won't be in Germany, let alone Russia."

The Germans started their third great offensive against Moscow on November 16th. Adolf Hitler had promised the German people that Moscow would be taken. He was prepared to sacrifice a million men to do it. Tremendous concentrations of troops and mechanized equipment went into the great push. Nazi soldiers advanced over mounds of their own dead—but they advanced. Town after town grudgingly fell. The Nazis were only 25 miles from Moscow.

Then the tide turned with startling suddenness. On December 3rd the Russians launched their own counter-offensive. One week later they announced that 85,000 German officers and men had been killed on one section of the Moscow front, and large territorial gains made. From December 10th on, the Russian offensive continued to move forward like an avalanche. The vital Moscow-Leningrad Railway was restored with the recapture of Kalinin.

The first major Soviet victory came in the south when Rostov, oil spigot for the Soviet armies, was reclaimed after a fierce battle. The Germans first said they evacuated Rostov voluntarily to bomb the city; later admitted they were driven out.

The year's end found the Soviets on the march back into the Donetz Basin, holding firm around Leningrad, and driving westward from Moscow toward Germany.

The immediate threat to the rich, oil-producing Caucasus seemingly had been dispelled, while Sevastopol, giant Soviet Black Sea naval base at the tip of the Crimean, had been relieved from siege.

The initial German offensive assumed mammoth blitz proportions, biting off huge chunks of territory, and killing hundreds of thousands by bullets—millions more by propaganda.

No accurate estimate of losses was possible. However, it was certain they were tremendous on both sides, both in men and material. The Nazis admitted they had lost nearly a million men; put Soviet losses at 10,000,000. Russian figures were similarly astronomical the other way.

Napoleon, with the greatest army the world had ever known, defeated himself by conquering Russia.

Adolf Hitler, at the year's end, seemed headed for a similar fate—without the victory.

Women of Yardley Area Are Active In Red Cross Work

YARDLEY, Jan. 9.—Mrs. John B. Force, production chairman of the local Red Cross, reports that 694 articles of clothing have been made by the women of Yardley and adjacent communities during 1941. Of this number 113 were sweaters, Mrs. Leo Smith and Mrs. Norman Druck being the outstanding knitters.

The surgical dressings class, held on Wednesday afternoons from one to four o'clock in Yardley Methodist Church, under direction of Mrs. R. Jackson Horwell, Mrs. Carlton R. Lee-dom and Mrs. Leo Smith, has completed 1,200 dressings. This class will be continued at the same time and place.

A new surgical dressings class will be held on Wednesday evenings, beginning January 14th, in St. Ignatius R. C. Hall, under direction of Mrs. Spencer Parks. Four hundred and nine dollars was subscribed during the annual membership drive, which is over $100 more than was given in 1940.

The Red Cross war emergency relief drive, which will be held in February, has already received a donation of $25 from Yardley Lions Club, and $15 from Yardley National Bank.
